PROUD TO PARTNER HOSPICE

At ABN AMRO Craigs we have always had the highest respect for the services provided by hospice around the country. This year marks a significant move forward in our commitment and contribution as we embark on a partnership to support hospice on both a national, and local community level, throughout the country.

Our aim is to raise awareness of the services hospice provides and help hospices around New Zealand raise the funds they require to operate every year. Each of our branches is looking forward to working with their local hospice this year, and well into the future. We believe, through your donation, you can also make a positive contribution towards helping someone make the most out of life.

Frank Aldridge

Chief Executive Officer - ABN AMRO Craigs

What is hospice?

Hospice care can be provided in a hospice inpatient facility, rest home, hospital or in a person's home or place of residence in the community. Hospice is a concept, a philosophy of care.

Hospice or palliative care is a special type of care for people whose illness is no longer curable. The aim is to help them achieve the best quality of life and support their family and friends.

What is provided?

Hospice provides services based on the communities need. They may include inpatient and community care, bereavement care, counseling and spiritual care, day stay and respite care as well as equipment hire, research and education programmes.

Hospice also has many volunteers who kindly donate their time to provide a range of services such as massage therapy and creative therapy, to everyday ground maintenance and assistance with fund-raising events. Anyone can use hospice care irrespective of age, religion or ethnicity, and all hospice services are provided free of charge.

What is ABN AMRO Craigs Role?

We believe it is possible for us to make a real difference to people who need a helping hand. We believe we can do this by supporting hospice in partnership. We have been involved with supporting the local hospices of our individual branches for many years, and this year, taking a bigger step and embarking on our partnership will give hospice fresh support all over New Zealand. Our two main goals are to raise awareness and to help raise the funds needed to continue to provide and operate the free care that is essential for people with terminal illness and their families to live a fulfilling life.

How can you help?

The donation that you give to your local hospice will go towards providing free palliative care. Most New Zealand hospices have to raise around 50% of what it costs to provide the service, which is why your donation is hugely valued and appreciated. Your donation will directly help people in need and you can help improve a patient's quality of life.

IT'S TIME TO REMEMBER HOW SPECIAL LIFE IS

When we were told hospice was something we should consider, we thought that meant the end. In hindsight it was the beginning of a very special time for our family. George was only in the hospice for a few days the first time. Nothing was too much trouble - we joked that he better not get used to being waited on! Family and friends could visit anytime, our son ended up staying the night in his room more than once. The support continued when he came home. Sue, his nurse visited often to make sure we were coping. It wasn't just George she was checking on, she always made time for me. After George died I saw a grief counsellor, which really helped. The hospice made a difficult time bearable with moments of enjoyment. It is truly remarkable we didn't have to pay a cent for such wonderful care. I will never forget the kindness of the volunteers and staff. Thanks to hospice we knew we weren't caring for George alone which meant we were able to love and spend time with him – what a gift.

Beth.
