MARK CLAYTON

*Chaplain, lead for spiritual care,
Martin House*

Mark Clayton worked for many years as the chaplain, or lead for spiritual care, in Martin House, a hospice for children and young people. He particularly enjoyed working with families to celebrate the lives and gifts of their children as well as reflecting on the work through writing and teaching.

Dr Jan Aldridge has worked and researched extensively with seriously ill children and young people, their families and staff who work with them. She has worked in the NHS, Hospices and Universities in the UK and holds an honorary Consultant post at Leeds Children's Hospital. She has published widely in academia, writes for both professional and lay audiences and has travelled globally lecturing, researching, and training.

In this webinar Mark and Jan will consider the role of rituals and rites of passage, including meaning making, healing in transitions and threshold spaces, and caring for the spirit. In their work, there is an emphasis on wholeness in the absence of cure. They will also consider what this work with children has taught that is relevant to palliative care throughout the life-span.
